OUR PRINCIPAL

Members of the Class of 1967:

Once more I have the privilege of writing a letter to a graduating class at Arlington High School, and once more I would speak as a voice from your common heritage, a voice that bids you fare well on your separate ways, free American men and women and responsible citizens of a wondrous and troublous world.

The Staff of your yearbook, the 1967 Indian, has chosen as a theme for your book:

The day shall not be up so soon as I,
To try the fair adventure of tomorrow.

Shakespeare

It is a line that excites the imagination and demands action. Such a theme is not for the late or the lazy. You are going to live in the world of tomorrow, and I suspect it is not a place for the late in understanding or the lazy in considering what needs to be done. Today is well along towards that tomorrow, and we may see already in the afternoon shadows an earnest of tomorrow's adventures.

Would you have tomorrow yours to cherish? Do you seek a fair adventure? Then, as Shakespeare suggests through the character, Lewis, speaking after a day of disappointment in The Life and Death of King John, you must step lively, before the sun is up!

Your theme is a good one. It speaks to us all from the end of bitter struggle, with much reason to be discouraged. But it is not a discouraging theme! From a tired past it calls to those who believe in a fair adventure and have faith in themselves tomorrow. It is your theme today! I can add to such an enterprising call only cheers for you, the Class of 1967, as you "try the fair adventure of tomorrow."

Raymond S. Locke.

"How did 'Big Mouth' get in here?"

A Big Money Transaction.

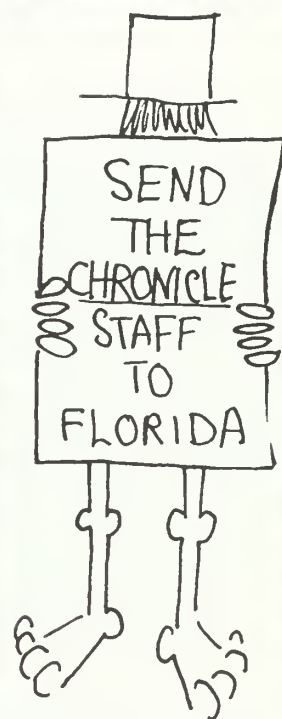

"Too bad the pictures won't go with the copy . . ."

Everything about the 1966-1967 Chronicle seemed experimental: an inexperienced but dedicated staff, a new adviser, and sweeping changes in the format of the paper. The new appearance of the Chronicle was a success, for the very first issue broke an all-time sales record and happily erased financial worries for the rest of the year. The staff's hectic year of work is rewarded by the traditional banquet in April, and at these festivities Aunt Minerva's true identity is disclosed. A poll of comments should reveal why this year was unforgettable for everyone who worked on the Chronicle:

Who was known as the "wind me up, I'll join" kid? . . . and the youth that was almost too fat to play Santa at the Christmas party for a much happier needy family . . . or the soprano that could usually be heard bellowing out Andy Williams's tunes in the corridors, and then he suddenly lost his voice when he learned he was to lead the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" at the S.C. sponsored Veteran's Day Assembly . . . But then there was his illustrious comrade who was usually so busy tuning guitars or editing student protest papers, he could scarcely find time for the newly formed Presidents' Organization or the Student-Teacher Forum.

The female members of this mystery group could usually be found either balancing the hungry S.C. financial books while writing letters to that favorite service-man or taking minutes and taking minutes and taking minutes while organizing such shocking events as the "Battle of the AHS Bands", the "Student-Teacher Talent Show" and the first (and probably last) "Computer Dance".

These diligent executive board members were known to enjoy the Wednesday afternoon meetings along with the homeroom representatives. At the usual meeting, such topics as, "When is this ever going to get over!", "Dick, I have to leave early!", "Speak up! I can't hear you!", "Pam, Shut-up!" "Let's burn the school!", "Long skirt!", "Pam, Shut-up!" "Look, we're not gonna get outa here until we get this done!" were discussed.

Outside the meetings, the homeroom representatives had just about as much fun goofing-up their homeroom talks. Some "goofer" of the year awards go to such famous personalities as Mary Lou Mulcahey, for her stunning performance of innocence when she was reprimanded by the president for skipping homerooms, and to Barb Icton for turning thirteen shades of red during one homeroom talk.

All-in-all, the '67 year was a prosperous one, with only a few threats of impeachment, revolution, murder, and self-destruction. We imagine Mrs. Humm would agree that everyone gained something during the year, if not knowledge, at least a husband.

In the Technical-Vocational High School, the Student Council is composed of nine members. Three students are selected from each department—Electronics, Machine, and Automotive. Meeting with the Director from time to time, the Council discusses with him various problems and situations. The students not only present problems affecting their respective trades, but also offer constructive suggestions on matters concerning the whole school. Through this exchange of advice and ideas, teachers and students profit by being able to understand each other better. As a direct result of this communication, the Director and faculty can more readily cope with problems as they arise in the shops and laboratories of the school.

AY-ers pose for a candid.

President Arlene Dannenberg opened the year with enthusiastically attended council meetings at her humble abode. We missed our loyal, true-blue Miss Hutchinson; but we need not have worried. We never lost sight of her for the rest of the year! (Who else but Miss H. could tell us the mathematical probability of the success of a dance and be right?) Of course we always had Mr. D'Antona, and that was enough for most of the girls. His lovely dancing charmed them at the International Conference in Nova Scotia! That brings to mind a classic remark. When a lowly sophomore asked where the Conference was to be held, one of our illustrious senior council-members replied: "Go to Halifax!" We all know what she really meant . . .

The Regional Representative, who complains that his name is never in the secretary's report, specializes in "Tales of the Convention":

"God save the Green Queen! . . . LEWD . . . I'm Chenery the Eighth I am! . . . Is this the orgy? . . . When you're in Canada, do as the Atkinsons do! . . . LEWD . . . Chenza trying on some glasses, and Paul putting his hand in front of her: 'Hey, move your foot!' . . . LEWD . . . Are you going to feel strange when you fly? . . . This is cool, (after touchdown) . . . stop, Stop, STOP!"

That usually stopped him, and we turned to the Questionnaire Chairman, who discovered that pupils at Arlington High prefer stag dances to any other kind. The Vice-President of Projects and Finances would often supplement these reports with the astounding news that the treasury was in good shape, plus or minus about fifty dollars. He was accurate in planning Christmas caroling routes and candy sales. During the time of the candy sale, the council-members all gained weight. Could it be they never even got the candy home? Our welfare project was constructive, with much "Ho ho-ing" and the response of pupils to help the unfortunate was very heartening. The Vice-President of Membership could boast 400 members—most of them active—which makes one wonder how they could sit still long enough to be counted. The secretary usually handed out her report, because she was too busy trying to remember the date to be able to give it orally. If you could read the notebook, you would see she kept detailed accounts of the meetings. With speakers like Mrs. Marge Dunton, and a panel with Brud Faulkner, Father Casey, and Mrs. Lanigan, the meetings were successful, even if the council gatherings were catastrophic. The year ended in June, but A.Y. stayed on to attend the International Conference in Dallas.

Oh, those sumptuous (?) dinners!

Science for fun and profit

Of all the extracurricular activities at A.H.S., being a laboratory assistant is probably the best, for the single reason that it is the only work for which you can be paid. Join any other club, and you pay dues. Become a lab assistant, and the school pays you.

Actually, the lab assistants are not so mercenary. Although their help is worth money, the practical scientific knowledge they acquire is even more valuable. These students like to learn by doing in different fields of science: chemistry, physics, and biology. The Science Department has many complex and delicate devices, and there is a right way to handle each of them. Add to this the fact that science itself demands precision, especially in the use of chemicals and electricity, and you can see that lab assistants must work carefully. They do such things as making up and standardizing solutions, preparing microscopic slides, and measuring the wave length of a beam of light. These procedures will be useful in college science courses, so that being a lab assistant is really a headstart. It is the ideal job for students who enjoy science and don't mind being paid to learn a little more about it.

Game of strategy

This boy plays chess in the traditional manner—all alone.

Any day, in room 14B, you can see members of the Chess Club laughing, talking, jumping up and down, and occasionally pushing little plastic pieces around on chess boards. The Chess Club is founded on the optimistic idea that anyone can be taught the principles of this fascinating royal game. One of the first skills members learn is that of debating, for at Chess Club meetings discussions on any topic can be heard.

The Club's best players participate as a team in an inter-scholastic Chess League. Through the years, the team has had an excellent record of championships. To continue the tradition, fearless leader Jack Marshall organized a relentless drive to win. Since battling fiercely with other teams did not exhaust the members' energy, the Chess Club expanded its interests this year. A Bridge Club was added, and now there is a game for almost everybody.

What will the Science Club think of next?

" . . . and after detaching the thingy from the whatsis . . ."

"With these hands . . ."

What does the Science Club do? Every day, in the closely guarded confines of room 36, dedicated young scientists gathered, but for purposes of national security, their activities must for the present remain secret. It can only be said that some rather strange experiments occurred!

The Science Club does have some programs carried on in full view of The Public Eye. Numerous field trips have been financed by car washes, bake sales, and a school-wide protection racket. Various speakers have come . . . and gone, to the immense delight of the sadistic young mob listening to them.

A first this year was our intrusion into the realm of movie-land. After seeing many films supplied by the department, we decided to make our own avant-garde attempt. It was a time-consuming, intricate job of synchronizing sound and pictures. Then, at the world premiere: the audience came . . . and left.

One event that was successful was a trip to the dump. This rock-pile, the refuse from the construction of the Quabbin Reservoir Aqueduct, was a source of some very exciting rocks.

Throughout the year, members enjoyed other activities, such as thumb wrestling and intimidating Mr. Meserve, our beloved leader. A few radicals even entered the Science Fair.

"They're obviously better than paper ones."

Folk and rock: that's our kind of music

Sounds of Silence is certainly not the theme song of the Guitar Club! Each week this year, Old Hall resounded with the din of simultaneous tuning, twanging, plucking, and strumming on guitars of various sizes and shapes. But Don't Think Twice, It's All Right, for the true purpose of the club was to provide guitarists with a chance to learn new playing styles and to exchange songs. So many teen-aged guitarists don't even read music, that song-trading is an essential part of expanding the repertoire. You listen to the new song enough times to learn the tune, and then you get the chords and all the words from someone, unless you can figure them out yourself; in that case, someone will want to learn the song from you. The Guitar Club welcomes all, expert or not, to Walk Right In and share what they do know. The beginning guitarist especially needs encouragement, because too many beginners give up, As Tears Go By, on account of sore fingers. Even the experienced and iron-fingered sometimes suffer from a lack of material, one of the major obstacles on the Rocky Road to becoming a Baez or Dylan.

Someone has said that the guitar is the easiest instrument to play badly and the hardest to play well. Fortunately, years of practice are not needed to gain great enjoyment from a guitar. As almost every aspiring folk-rock group knows, many things can be hidden under the camouflage of accompanying kazoos, tambourines, harmonicas, and voices.

That the club was named "Guitar" and not "Folk Music" shows the extent to which folk and rock music, the two major fields for non-classical guitar, have merged. Under the leadership of the one and only Dylan, the first folk-singer to popularize electric guitar, swinging rhythm and blues has been blended with the more meaningful words of folk music to produce folk-rock with the merits of both its sources. The Guitar Club includes players of both electric and folk guitars, and even a few people who listen to Segovia.

The aid of Mr. Leone has been indispensable, for only he, by humming a bit of Hush-a-Bye, or Quit Your Low Down Ways, has been able to conquer the pandemonium when someone needed to continue a Dangling Conversation.

Voyageons a Paris

Once every three Thursdays in room 94, the French Club engaged in more or less riotous goings-on. The glib, glorious tones of Françoise Hardy, Sylvie Vartan, and other soulmates provided a musical background. Once it happened that we took a trip to Paris, mecca of civilization and culture, during Christmas vacation. The trip, of course, took place only in the minds of our President and Vice-President, mais c'est la vie! Miss Blackall, our adviser, often watched our activities rather calmly, perhaps because she doubted that what she saw was real:

Those parties in the back of Jean's VW . . . Hershey's milk chocolate, of course . . . cross-word puzzles en français . . . speakers (?) . . . would you believe a movie? . . . "I can't wait for the banquet" . . . is it Susan B.'s group this time? . . . where's Jim—he has the money! . . . where's Jean? . . . (she has the car) . . . special guest speaker: Louis XVI . . . Honi soit qui mal y pense . . . Liberté, Égalité, Fraternité! . . . and we try harder too!

With the aid of Magistra Rotunda, and the supervision of Vergil, Aesculapius, and Cicero, the Latin Club explored its chosen theme for the year, classical art. Social events included a Roman Christmas party featuring imitation wine, cookies, dates, honey and nut pastry, and, of course, grapes.

Sooner or later, every Latin Club member tried on a toga, and became familiar with the art that transforms an ordinary sheet into a gracefully draped garment. Togas (togae) are comfortable, but not the ideal clothing for climbing onto concrete railings or for running up stairs.

Following tradition, the Club planned colors and a motto to decorate a shield. Crimson and gold were selected, and the motto for 1967 is: "All things change, and we change with them;" omnia mutantur, in illis mutamur.

Argument develops a strong jaw

At long last, the Debating Club has conquered, or at least survived The Plague. "What plague?" you ask, as well you may; but this plague is one that often befalls clubs. For the last three years, there have been frequent shifts in advisers. Finally we have been saved by the arrival upon the scene of the effervescent Mr. Hendrickson! Under his enthusiastic guidance, we have triumphed over certain formidable problems: absence of means of transportation to League debates; lack of preparation by the members; and, last but not least, lack of members themselves.

Surprisingly, we do not have to disguise an unsuccessful season with a statement like, "It was a building year," for we have kept pace in the North Shore Debating League by actually winning several debates. Indicative of the club's new vitality is this statistic: more than 37.4 per cent of the members came to the meetings!

All men are brothers

Arlington's contribution to the Civil Rights movement has gained new vitality this year. Under the counsel of Mr. Rahilly, the Civil Rights Club has worked to increase understanding of the ever-sensitive subject of race relations.

Club President Phyllis Malatesta, Vice-President Kathy Macridis and Secretary Marianne Balazs arranged a series of activities with a group of teen-agers from Roxbury. Bowling, skating and parties were some of the events, but the Club is much more than a social group. We hope that by continued efforts such as our contribution to the building of a Roxbury playground last year we can promote realization of the problems of Civil Rights in a peaceful way, and have some fun in the process. Although the Club does not plan to visit Alabama, it is our belief that the work we do on a small scale can have far-reaching results.

And some people even study!

Semi-Finalists: C. Cole, J. Stein, L. Lanza, B. Beauchamp.

Behind the three-hour test these students took is a nation-wide, independent, friendly, non-profit organization, the National Merit Scholarship Corporation. This program exists to find secondary-school students of unusual promise and to help as many as possible attend the colleges of their choice.

High scores entitled several A.H.S. students to receive Letters of Commendation, which are not only suitable for framing, but also impressive as part of the high-school record. The Commendation winners had the privilege of forwarding the Letter to any college to which they wished to apply.

Another range of scores belongs to the Semifinalists, a group containing less than one per cent of the total number of students who took the test. This year the four Semifinalists gained recognition through letters from Governor Volpe, surprise publicity photo sessions, and newspaper articles. Although no travel plans were made for them with town-wide support, they did receive invitations to apply to various colleges of which they had never heard before. To be eligible for the rank of Finalist, it was necessary to indicate in information forms which of the following spare-time activities they had pursued: writing a book, inventing a patentable device, performing an original musical score, and other accomplishments.

All of the Commendation winners and the Semifinalists deserve congratulations, because they have shown themselves to be among the nation's most outstanding high school students.

Bringing you the wonderful world of books

Once a month the Library Corps gathers its troops of dedicated book-worms, helping hands, and librarians-to-be. This is, unlike many clubs, primarily a service organization, and its contribution to the business of running the library is considerable. Every member spends at least one period a week shelving books, reading shelves, slipping books, and helping to accomplish a variety of tasks.

The Library Corps is, no doubt, best known for being in charge of the annual book fair, at which students are offered a wide selection of interesting paperback books.

With all this emphasis on work and service, it may seem that the Library Corps members don't have any fun, but don't believe it for a minute! Facts indicate that the members are not beaten to work harder by cruel librarians, but instead may often be found enjoying parties and outings.

Who can forget the parties at Kathy's house? . . . "Don't touch me, I'm a star!" . . . Christmas caroling and getting thrown out of a nursing home . . . "Guess they've heard us sing before!" . . . preparing for the book fair . . . "Don't you think the soup can should be lowered a bit?" . . . "Who's the funny one who didn't clean the can?" . . . "Sorry about that, chief!" . . . party meetings . . . "Forget about the business—on with the food!" . . . "A putty knife to cut the cake?" . . . "Somebody forgot to bring plates" . . . book fair best-sellers: How to Do Your Homework in Less Than Half the Time, Collected Works of the Big Mouth, and Teen-Aged Son of Dracula Joins the Library Corps!

Fractured flickers?

Arlington High School's Audio-Visual Club operates on a very close schedule. Arriving at school at 7:30, the members are soon on their way to save you from boring classes. Usually, delighted cries of "Hey! a movie!" greet the appearance of projector and screen, as the A.V. Club member resigns himself to seeing Stem and Leaf, or last month's news three times in one day.

The A.V. Club is so busy because A.H.S. has one of the biggest and best-equipped audio-visual departments of any Massachusetts public school. Many of the machines are highly complex; this year even a fully equipped darkroom was added. Because all members learn thoroughly the correct use of their equipment, the duties of the Audio-Visual Club are self-rewarding, and membership is a valuable high school experience.

. . . wonder what she's "hmm-ing" about?

The energy of the girls is never exhausted.

Starting as freshman always do in the Junior Club,
We worked our way up so that now they dub
Us the older and sophisticated Senior Set,
And now we recall all the times we have met:

Meetings in the hall, for business and for fun,
Summers at the Barn laughing in the surf and the sun;
The days we hurried and ran to catch the bus,
While the Cambridge Y waited patiently for us.

Attendance boxes carefully kept up to date,
With little credit for those who were always late;
The troubles with the treasury, and the trials
Of the corresponding secretary writing across miles.

Our dances and the nerve-wracking time until he,
The boy you asked, said, "Sure, I'll call you at three."
And the search for just the right dressy dress,
So you could impress him as a pretty girl, not a mess.

The biggest events of our affairs in the year:
The Mother-Daughter Banquet, with all members there;
The Semi-Formal, attended with that very special boy,
And Summer Conference, which always ends in tears of joy.

And what could we do without our cabinet and officers,
Who plan and manage all of what occurs,
But above any one else, Rhody is the one we turn to,
And Marie we consult before doing anything new.

So our years spent here have flown quickly by,
But the A.H.S. Girls' Club remains as part of the Y.

Ski Club: the snow bunny set

"See that tree? Don't hit it!" This is the motto of the 1967 Ski Club. We are the most unusual club in the entire school. What other organization has members who crawl out of bed at 5:00 a.m.; see green moons following the bus; starve for three hours and then have egg salad sandwiches for breakfast; chase skis down the "Lord's Prayer" slope; and scare waitresses at Ho-Jo's?

Every vacation the Club heads for a ski resort in New Hampshire or Vermont. Mount Snow, we discovered, was the only place where we could ski down a slope and end up in a seventy degree swimming pool. Mount Sunapee, our favorite spot, was the only resort where we could unexpectedly crash (literally) into AHS teachers, wear baby bibs (to prevent frost bite), and have a party at the summit lodge. Mount Bromley was unique because it was the only mountain having a bright red ski for a landmark, showing where a certain club president had a slight mishap.

Are AHS students good skiers? We may not be Olympic material, but we do have Jerome Cura. Jerry recently invented two methods of stopping on skis: head for the nearest snowbank or grab hold of the closest tree and hang on. We have fast skiers and slow ones (Bonnie Bonnell). Bonnie was just recovering from one of her spectacular falls when she found herself in the path of a speedy and impatient skier, who impolitely shouted, "Okay Granny, get going!"

It is amazing how much you can see while riding a double chair lift. We were on our way to the summit when we saw a single red ski sliding down the trail. A few seconds later, we saw the other half of the pair coming down the slope. As we were about to get off the lift, far below we saw a familiar figure plowing through the snow after the skis. Guess who! Our fearless leader!

Ski Club members have treasured souvenirs of trips: black and blue marks, aches, pressure points from ski boots. Most unforgettable of all was Miss Wohllebe's patient encouragement—we needed it!

"So you're the Fortune Teller!"

Practicing a minuet, maybe?

For the Gilbert and Sullivan Club, this was a year to remember. 1966 started in a whirlpool. At first there was talk of producing a Broadway show. When that idea was abandoned, the club returned to the conference tables for weeks of throat-slitting, bartering, bribery, and sabotage. Finally the decision makers emerged with an earth-shattering decree. Forsaking its namesakes, G & S would now be known as the "Victor and Herbert" Club, and would produce "The Fortune Teller."

The Club's motto was: "Better late than never!" Although rehearsals started late, the enthusiasm of the members was not lessened. The cast threw themselves into the scenes with great feeling, as these lines show:

"Musette, I am babbling over with love for you!"

and

"Mousette, I love you!"

Only "The Fortune Teller" can generate such passion!

Consider two of the "gangs" in this operetta: the ballet company (played by AHS's most graceful women wrestlers), and the gypsy tribe (a little too adept at pocket-picking to be amateurs).

On a more serious note, which is rather hard to find in this show, none of us will ever forget the help that Karen Hauser gave our girls. Trying to make June Taylor Dancers out of Globe Trotters was certainly an ambitious task! Our thanks go to her, along with a giant economy-sized bottle of tranquilizers.

As the total hours spent in rehearsal rose to astronomical figures, we looked forward to a great show, and, of course, to those "wild orgies," the cast parties!

Mr. Laman steps up and taps his baton on a music stand: click, click. "All right, let's tune up . . . Don't scratch your head—you may get a splinter!" Out comes the little black box. For one moment there is complete silence, and then, almost magically, an "A" comes droning from the mysterious box. All ears strain for the barely perceptible note. The plucking of strings is heard. One by one, the winds find their tone. "Jay, you're sharp . . . That's because you're flat, stupid!" Everyone is always eager to help his fellow musician.

Mr. Laman raises his baton and waits until Bill and Teddy stop giggling and Nola and Ann finish their mint juleps. By the time his baton has come down to his second buttonhole, about half of the orchestra members have impatiently put down their instruments. Click, click! "That was awful. Let's try it again." This time as his baton gets to his second buttonhole, the sound of a full symphony orchestra rises in crescendo: zit-zit, skreek, tweet, boom, ding, zit! The music lasts for two measures. Click, click! Inevitably, one or two people find, to their amazement, that they can actually play the piece, and so they take advantage of their moment of limelight and continue playing. Zit-zit, zit . . . zit. Clickety-click click click! "We stopped one whole minute ago. Practice at home. Okay, let's hear the second violins alone."

Thus it goes, day after day, "Try it again, horns!" Painful step after painful step. "Drummers, stay where you belong. It's a drummer's lot to be bored." Then one day, at last, the sound is achieved, and each member of the orchestra is proud to be part of it.

Band music for every occasion

Fifty members of the 1967 Concert Band enjoyed an active year. Plans were made early for performances in March at the junior highs and at other high schools. The Band eagerly looked forward to the Northeast Music Festival and hoped to equal the 1965 feat of earning the highest A rating.

Many things were accomplished by the Band in the past four years. AHS musicians cut two records and established the tradition of a Spring Concert. Bandsmen gained valuable experience by performing ambitious traditional works of Bach, Rimski-Korsakov, and Holst. They also ventured into the field of modern music, with twelve-tone compositions, some serious, some humorous. Director Laman commented that the Band had a well balanced sound, and so each member can recall this organization as one to which he could point with pride.

Thursday, September 1, 1966, was the day that the Red and Gray Marching Band began maneuvers. Sixty-four spirited members donned the uniform of maroon jacket and slightly baggy, gray pants, and then surprised spectators with the routine, "Patterns of Motion," a new concept in showmanship. The Band became a favorite with football fans by performing pure jazz, ("Joshua," "Swing Low"), and numbers from the Broadway hit, "The Fantasticks." The music was accompanied by eye-catching dance steps and was punctuated by shouts of "Yeah!"

Band seniors can look back to the first historic trip to New Bedford, the "Spread Eagle," routing assignments, kneeling in the mud, and their last Thanksgiving game. The show-stopping Band swung gallantly down Mass. Ave. for Veterans' Day, Patriots' Day, and Memorial Day before they finally hung up their uniforms for good.

To the public, a half-time show means music and colorful dance routines, but to the Samettes, each show is the result of long hours of work. Kick and step, step and kick—until we thought we'd never be able to walk off the field! We spent endless afternoons with Mr. Laman's whistle ringing in our ears: "Back to the beginning," again and again.

One thing every Samette becomes well acquainted with is mud. Heat and rain are hazards too, but mud is by far the worst. It is hard enough to keep pace on slippery wet grass, but in mud, if you slip for just one second—boom! Never will we forget that hot day in Waltham when our leg make-up got all over everything. What a mess!

With the aid of Mrs. Bretagna, we had mastered the impossible by the end of the season. We could actually tell our right feet from our left!

Being a Majorette takes up a lot of time . . . especially in the summer . . . "I can't come to practice, I have to baby-sit!" . . . Linda, did the tranquilizers help any? . . . "Don't give up!" . . . "Joanne, don't wiggle—march!" . . . getting stuck in the mud—a major problem . . . "Girls, please cooperate" . . . "Andy, do your ballet at home and your twirling at practice!" . . . "Don't worry, Karen, you'll grow" . . . every pre-game show—leg exercises with the Samettes . . . "Kick, one, two, three!" . . . "Hey, I thought we were Majorettes" . . . good exercise, anyhow . . . "Which way do we go? Which way do we go?" . . . "Cindy, wake up!" . . . bus rides . . . thump, thump . . . "There goes Donna's coke" . . . "Good jump, Linda!" (one foot on the ground and one in the air) . . . "What's this? Mary Jane hurt her knee? Can't march anymore? But we need you, Mary Jane!" . . . Cindy cheering with the cheerleaders . . . "Will the real cheerleaders please stand up?" . . . "Linda, why did you get so nervous?" . . . Karen having a convulsion again—what makes you do these things? . . . fun? Keeping the school running smoothly

Who is there who has never seen a crumpled paper littering a corridor, and passed by thinking, "Let the custodians take care of it"? Fortunately, the staff never lets up in its effort to keep the school clean—a never ending job! Then, too, there are always things that need to be repaired. When heat vents insist on blowing out cold air or when fluorescent lights turn purple and flash on and off, the custodians come to the rescue. The yearbook staff has a special debt of gratitude to the custodians, for without their patience and their many sets of keys, this book would not be possible.

The lunchroom staff and the stockroom assistants also supply many needs of the school. It is no easy job to feed a luncheon party of some two thousand ravenous students! Despite the close schedule, the jobs of preparing, serving, and selling the food are smoothly carried out.

The Girls

Probably one of the least celebrated but most influential institutions at AHS is the Office Assistants Underground. This notorious organization, run primarily by females, has the reputation among the student body of working in close cooperation with Housemasters' Offices, the Guidance Department, and even the Main Headquarters of the opposition. Such subversive activities as bringing discipline slips to persons rebellious to the Establishment, filing secret documents in steel cabinets, and collecting daily attendance records from informers are carried on by these agents. Members of the OAU even bear private communications concerning the activities of the student body to the enemy. Rumor has it that without the continued help of the OAU, the enemy's organization might indeed collapse.

He lives on in your life and in

From his Freshman year, Steve's teachers and classmates placed him among the best in his class. Throughout school he excelled in advanced mathematics and science courses. Steve did well not only in these classes, but also in the competitions of the AHS Mathematics Team, Chess Team, and Science Club. Outside, Steve enjoyed playing tennis. In the fall of his Senior year, under the early admissions plan, he was accepted at Bates College. On the morning of February 4, 1967, after a short illness, Steve died.

"Steve was a top scholar, who won the distinct honor of the Bausch and Lomb Award for our best record in science for three years. More important, however, is the fact that he was "tops" as a person. He was a complete "gentle-man" of stature and fine character. We are all poorer with his passing."

—Mr. Miller

"Working together with Steve in the Junior Red Cross Council, I knew of his willingness to give his time and knowledge for others. He lived the present with understanding, consideration, and determination. He looked to the future with youthful enthusiasm and hope."

—Nanette Ciano

"To me Steve was always someone I could count on, as a classmate and as a friend. Through classes we shared, through the Mathematics Team, and through several afternoon tennis games, I learned to appreciate his sincere, intelligent, and well-balanced character."

—Francis Chang

"In this murky world, Steve McLean's words, like his character, rang clear and honest."

—Mr. Pratt

"A gentleman and a scholar—a natural mathematician. Steve was my protégé and he will be sorely missed. He certainly left his mark with both his classmates and his teachers."

—Miss Hutchinson

"Steve was an excellent student, a fine citizen, and most of all, a wonderful guy."

—Paul Cavicchi

"I suggest that teachers should be willing to discuss differences of opinion with the student at no penalty, to show the student why they disagree, and to encourage him to bring up material that questions the validity of the subject matter."

The faculty of the Cutter School is presenting an electric stroboscope to Steve's father, so that Mr. McLean may donate this apparatus to the Arlington High School Science Department in Steve's name.

What are field hockey players made of?

P. Morello, R. Weisman, C. Cole, J. Whitney, N. Good.

Nancy Good.

Connie Cole.

Rose Weisman, Jane Whitney.

Pat "Snooky" Morello.

Saves at the goal by Pat for four shutouts—
Ugly bruises on the shins even with skin guards—
Giving Eilenne a big cheer for unaided scoring—
Admiring a nice play by senior co-captain Rose—
Rushing by the defense on corners.

Asking scorer, manager Mary Lou for the time—
Nancy giving a hilarious cheer for Karen—
Dunking the little freshmen in the shower.

Standing back while Ginny scores for the forwards—
Praying that Jane won't send it flying to you—
Inspiring the J.V.'s with varsity skills like advancing—
Congratulating Connie on the one goal of her career—
Every corner should be a goal.

Asking Moogle Mouse for good luck—
Needing a tissue on those cold days—
Dumping on Wendy's beautiful cheering.

Eating all the cookies before the visitors get any—
Voting to play although Winchester didn't dare come—
Elation after Joanne gets the pass on the sideline—
Running back and forth, back and forth, back and forth—
Yelling at the opponents for tripping.

Throwing Jane in the air in the pre-game cheer—
Hoping fullback Suzanne will stop that fierce forward—
Inciting spirit with songs like "Ten Green Bottles"—
Noticing you have mud all over your newly washed tunic—
Goals: four in one game by Nanci M.

No wins at the Playday in Concord—
Imagining an undefeated season in 1967—
Cleaning out two months' pile of dirty socks—
Enjoying a fast, hard game, regardless.

THAT'S WHAT FIELD HOCKEY PLAYERS ARE MADE OF!

Supergirl ... or superball?

To assure the best in all her games,
 Coach McDonough chose just these names:
 Abruzzese, Barnaby, Getrost, Mahoney,
 Manderino, Heffernan, Naugler, Kenney,
 Lantos, and Caisse. What do they make?
 The Girls' Basketball Team; there's no mistake!

First Newton South lost by twenty and five,
 Both our forwards and defense stayed alive.
 With Heffernan and Manderino doing their best,
 They never stopped or gave Newton a rest.
 But the name of the game seems to be "shoot"
 "Barnaby eighteen, Abruzzese sixteen to boot!"

Then close games with Watertown and with Melrose,
 So our girls had to keep up on their toes.
 We won them both; one over Watertown,
 And Mahoney in overtime sent Melrose down.
 Then twenty points for Getrost, just a sophomore,
 To make forty-eight, Newton fourteen the score!

Next came a win over rival Belmont,
 Their no loss record did not us daunt.
 Cambridge Latin was next to fall,
 And our girls had hopes of winning them all.
 But along came Winch to ruin the streak,
 And finally our girls had to be meek.

So went the season of bounces and bounds,
 Practices in seemingly endless rounds.
 Donna, our captain, was really swell,
 But who the best was no one would tell!
 The Jayvees were good, and spirit was fine,
 And great Coach McDonough kept all in line!

"Now, let's see if it stays in the air by itself."

At AHS after the students only the Faculty is more directly involved in our education. Some are classroom teachers who teach their subjects; others coach or advise clubs; some counsel students, by appointment or otherwise; but all are meeting the students with themselves. If we have an adventuresome school, rising before the sun, we must surely have sensitive and enterprising men and women who teach at AHS.

CLASS OFFICERS

Gee, Fred!

John, Fred, Glenn, and Betsy represent the class of '67. By electing them, the class bestowed on these four students an honor and a responsibility which they have fulfilled. They have sincerely desired to work for their class and in some way to leave AHS better than it was when they took office. Betsy's words, "I'm proud to serve my class," describe a feeling that the officers all share.

What's wrong now?

John Walsh, President

Betsy McCall, Secretary

Before you accept that first job . . .

Look over your employer
as carefully as he does you

What's the Company like anyway? Would I be proud to work there? Reputation for square dealing with employees? Pleasant surroundings?

Will I be working with others my own age? Are they friendly? Do they socialize after hours?

Will the boss be reasonable? Appreciate good, hard work, but won't explode if I make a mistake?

Will I make a decent week's pay? Have a chance for raises, advancement, more responsibility? How about fringe benefits?

Is the work challenging? I had what it takes to get through high school. Will they give me a chance to use my brains?

Note: Many young men and women in this area can answer "Yes" to these questions. They work for New England Telephone Company . . . New England's largest employer.

Why not talk with our employment interviewer soon . . . before you graduate? Ask your Guidance Counselor to tell you when and where to apply.
